All hay prices quoted are dollars per ton FOB point of origin for alfalfa hay unless otherwise noted.

The information presented in this report is compiled from public and private quality tested sales and reports in the Midwest.

The past several months of hay reports are archived and you may view previous hay reports, go to <http://fyi.uwex.edu/forage/> on the Team Forage web site and click on the past hay reports section.

Hay auction data is collected on the first and third week of the month and posted by or before Tuesday. Prices quoted in this report are for “as fed” alfalfa hay.

Demand and Sales Comments

Hay market begins 2021 on a strong note for the first week of the year. Overall all classes of hay sold about $10.00 higher than the last sale in 2020. If you need forage or have forage to sell or straw, connect to the Farmer-to-Farmer webpage at <http://farmertofarmer.uwex.edu/>. You may contact your local county agriculture educator if you need help placing an ad. There is no charge for the service.

Straw prices are for oat, barley, or wheat straw. Straw prices remain steady with limited supply at the market. Small square bales averaged $4.18 a bale (range of $3.00 to $6.00). Large square bale straw averaged $40.00 per bale (a range of $20.00 to $66.00). Large round bale straw averaged $34.00 per bale (a range of $15.00 - $62.00).

In Nebraska, all forages sold steady with good demand. Snow has many ranchers feeding hay to stockers, majority of hay is moving out of state. In Iowa, supply is strong, demand is lighter, and prices were mostly steady.

In South Dakota, alfalfa hay is fully steady. Demand was moderate with mild weather conditions. Greatest demand is dairy quality hay moving out of state.

In Missouri, hay movement is light to moderate. Prices remain steady with interest in high quality hay for dairy or equine. .

In Southwest Minnesota, prices were steady with an increased supply of lower quality hay at the market. In Kansas, hay market prices are steady to strong with demand increasing this week. Good alfalfa is hard to find was one comment as demand is moving hay.

In Wisconsin, prices are steady too strong for dairy quality hay. There is demand for all classes of hay with the start of the New Year.

The next Hay Market Demand and Price Report for the Upper Midwest will be posted by Tuesday, January 25, 2021. Have a safe new year.
