Crops & Soils Educator

All hay prices quoted are dollars per ton FOB point of origin for alfalfa hay unless otherwise noted.

The information presented in this report is compiled from public and private quality tested sales and reports in the Midwest.

The past several months of hay reports are archived and you may view previous hay reports, go to <http://fyi.uwex.edu/forage/> on the Team Forage web site and click on the past hay reports section.

Hay auction data is collected on the first and third week of the month and posted by or before Tuesday. Prices quoted in this report are for “as fed” alfalfa hay.

Demand and Sales Comments

Wide spread rain in Wisconsin has eased some drought concerns in areas of the state. Dairy quality hay continues to be in demand. The market was steady this past week with limited offerings. If you need forage or have forage to sell or straw, connect to the Farmer-to-Farmer webpage at <http://farmertofarmer.uwex.edu/>. You may contact your local county agriculture educator if you need help placing an ad. There is no charge for the service.

Straw prices are for oat, barley, or wheat straw. Straw prices are steady with a limited supply of straw. Small square bales averaged $4.15 a bale (range of $3.00 to $6.00). Large square bale straw averaged $38.00 per bale (a range of $20.00 to $70.00). Large round bale straw averaged $46.00 per bale (a range of $40.00 - $49.00).

In Nebraska, hay prices were steady to strong with good demand for types of forage. There is a lot of out of state interest this week. In Iowa, supply is good, demand is steady, and prices are steady.

In South Dakota, all classes of hay are firm. Drought rages on across the Dakota's. Third cutting is taking place with reduced yields.

In Missouri, prices are steady with moderate supply and limited sales. It is august and the state is green is good news.

In Southwest Minnesota, prices were steady. In Kansas, market prices were steady, demand remains good for alfalfa. Most farmers use the term quiet when asked about interest in hay with some interest from out of state buyers.

In Wisconsin, prices are steady for dairy quality hay. Lower quality or higher moisture hay is being discounted.

The next Hay Market Demand and Price Report for the Upper Midwest will be posted by Tuesday, August 23, 2021.
